Status of children staying with their mothers in Jails

814. SHRI SANTOSH BAGRODIA: SHRI GHULAM NABI AZAD: Will the Minister of HOME AFFAIRS be pleased to state:

(a) what is the general status of children who stay with their mothers in jails;

(b) whether after certain age they are moved to juvenile homes;

(c) if so, whether placing them in juvenile homes is equivalent to violating their basic rights and human rights, since they would be in the company of criminal teenagers for no fault to theirs;

(d) whether as per Supreme Court's guidelines equal and fair chance in terms of nutrition, health and education is actually being given to such children; and

(e) if so, then to what extent?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF HOME AFFAIRS (SHRI I.D. SWAMI): (a) to (c) Prisons is a State subject under List II of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution. Accordingly, prisons and prisoners are administrated by the State Governments as per the Prisons Act, 1894 and provisions of the Jail manuals framed or adopted by different States. Hence no such information is maintained centrally. However, usually as per the provisions in the State Prison Manuals, a child upto the age of 6 years may remain with his mother in prison if no other arrangements, for keeping him with relatives or otherwise, can be made. No such child is admitted into or retained in prison, if he has attained the age of six years. Generally, the State Prisons handover the children beyond six years of age to their relatives, failing which States Prison Department request their Social Welfare Department to place them in a home run by the Social Welfare Department or seek the assistance of NGOs, in this matter.

(d) and (e) No such guidelines issued by the Supreme Court have been received in the Ministry of Home Affairs. However, State Governments provide such children basic facilities such as nutritious diet, medical care and education, etc.
